The tabernacle has been listed with the State Historic Society. It is no longer used on a regular basis.

was a smaller meeting room called 'the back room.' Above the back room was a room called the circle room where the high council and stake presidency met to hold their prayer circles.

The red sandstone Tabernacle was the crowning achievement in church buildings in the county up to that time and was used as the center of all stake activities for well over 75 years. The ground was landscaped in 1929 and remains much the same today.

In 1930, the inside of the building underwent extensive remodeling and updating. The back room was removed and a stage was added. The galleries were also removed. The tabernacle is now a historical site and tours can be taken through the structure.
